DID YOU KNOW.....

that next weekend we will have the special Second Collection to help fund our endowed scholarships at Bethlehem University?

You will find information about Bethlehem University in this bulletin, (re-printed from Our Sunday Visitor), and, we hope that you will become excited about this project! What started off in 2015 as a small Parish project – to reach out through an annual scholarship for a student at the only Catholic university in the Holy Land, and in some way to help build enduring bridges of understanding and peace in the region, as well as supporting the struggling Christian community – turned into a very successful Diocesan-wide project!

The Order of the Knights and Ladies of the Holy Sepulchre of Jerusalem – got behind this as a wonderfully appropriate way to honor our Bishop Kicanas, who has a long-time and deeply-felt commitment to working for peace in the Near East. Bishop Kicanas serves on the Board Bethlehem University Foundation. Bishop Emeritus Kicanas is the son of an immigrant from Lebanon, and has made many connections in the Near East, through his chairmanship of Catholic Relief Services. He is a strong supporter of Bethlehem University, which has been described as an “oasis of peace” in the midst of the tensions and violence we so often read about!

On their recent Pilgrimage to the Holy Land, several of our parishioners - Deacon Lauro and Lupita Teran, Deacon Michael and Helen Denton, Hector and Pearl Wilson-Natal, Rafael Wilson, Charles and Dolores Irwin, Johanne Bowling, Dexter and Elizabeth Dutney, Bob and Lucy Leon, Ann Lund, Michelle Mitchell, Maryann Hockstad, and Ann Dickson - were guests of Bethlehem University, and enjoyed lunch with our St. Andrew's Nursing Scholarship recipient, Angelina Mukarker, as well as the recipients of the Bishop Kicanas Scholarships! The group enjoyed a tour of the University! They can share their first-hand impressions with you!

Please consider your gift – whatever you are able to give – as a kind of “vote” for peace in the Holy Land – peace based upon mutual respect, open dialogue and the peaceful resolution of issues!

We believe that Bethlehem University may be the last, best chance for peace in the Holy Land, and so we are committed as a Parish to the mission and the vision of Bethlehem University!

Question of the Week:

Living with uncertainty

Mary measured all these words and pondered them in her heart (Luke 2:19)

For Adults: When have you found it difficult to understand or accept a teaching of the church?

For Children: Who teaches you to have faith in God?

Solemnity of Mary, The Holy Mother of God— January 1st, 2023

CATHOLIC QUIZ: This week's Question: "Was January 1st always the beginning of the calendar year?"

The Answer to Last Week's Question: "Where does the ascription of Mary as "Mother of God" come from? Mary's oldest title - "Mother of God" - was formally adopted at the Council of Ephesus in the year 431, with the object of clarifying the Divine Nature of JESUS.

The bishop of Constantinople at that time, a priest named Nestorius, maintained that there were two distinct 'persons' in the Incarnate Christ, one human and one divine. The revealed truth is that there is a 'hypostatic union' of the two natures, in the one Person of JESUS of Nazareth, and thus could say, as the Church teaches, that God (the Second Person of the Most Holy Trinity, as He existed before time began) was born of Mary, that He was crucified, and that He died: the truth of the Incarnation. In the end, whatever the title of Mary being used, we are invited to always see Mary in connection with the saving work of her Son. She is, of course, a Mother for every Christian, given to us from the Cross – "Behold, your Mother!"

She is also the model of discipleship and contemplation: "Having entered deeply into the history of salvation, Mary, in a way, unites in her person and re-echoes the most important doctrines of the Faith, and when she is the subject of preaching and devotion, she prompts the Faithful to come to her Son, to His Sacrifice, and to the love of the Father." (Lumen Gentium, 65)

(If you would like to be as smart as the "Quiz Master" — pick up a copy of the Catholic Source Book, available in the Parish Office for only $20!)

SOUL FOOD:

"The Virgin Mary teaches us what it means to live in the Holy Spirit and what it means to accept the Good News in our life. She conceived JESUS by the action of the Holy Spirit, and every Christian, each one of us, is called to accept the Word of God, to receive JESUS inside of us, and then, to bring Him to everyone!"

- Pope Francis (1936-)

On behalf of my Home Community, St. Felicia's in Ansha (Nigeria), and myself, I wish to sincerely thank you, the Parishioners of St. Andrew's, for your generous donation for the completion of the roof, windows, and doors of our Rectory in Ansha! The pastor, Fr. Julius Agah, received your donation with profound joy and gratitude. He hopes to have the whole project completed by Easter!

I am proud and happy to be part of the St. Andrew's Parish Family – it is elating for me that you have sponsored this mission project for the church in which I was catechized and baptized. This means the whole world to me! Thank you again for being a Parish that actively evangelizes through mission support to needy communities around the world! Know that whenever the history of my home Parish is read, it will be remembered that St. Andrew's came to our assistance in our time of great need!

May our Lord, who cannot be outdone in generosity, bestow His choicest blessings upon you.

Fr. Samuel

3 practices to implement in the new year

Gretchen R. Crowe - the editor-in-chief of OSV News. December 16, 2022

How can we take the newness of the season and the gift of God's grace and embrace them in tandem?

The first is living in a posture of gratitude. God is so generous with us. He sent us his Son, the Word made flesh, to open the door to salvation...Do we ponder that enough? Dwell in that enough? Do we live out our lives in that place of gratitude, acknowledging that everything is gift — and show our gratitude to him for it?

The second suggestion I have is to cultivate a life where peace can dwell...How do we become people of peace, welcoming the Prince of Peace into our homes? How can we practice patience, set aside frustrations, opt for collaboration over conflict? How can we avoid letting the world or those around us disrupt our peace? How can we bring peace to others who struggle?

The third is prioritizing an attitude of generosity. God is so generous with us. And we don't deserve a mite of it! How can we extend that generosity with others? It doesn't have to mean writing a check to a charity, though that's always a noble and good thing. It doesn't mean volunteering for a worthy cause, though that is very good, too. Generosity can be much more simple: a smile when one's natural impulse might be a grumble, choosing to think the best of someone's intentions rather than the worst, or taking the time to offer a word of support or encouragement, even when in a rush.

There are so many ways of embracing the newness of life that is God's great gift to us. In this new year, let us choose to cooperate.

The Knights of Columbus Bishop Salpointe Council is sponsoring a Consecration to the Holy Family at all Masses associated with January 1, 2023. Parishioners are asked to look for the prayer cards in the pews. A brochure on family preparation for the consecration will be available in the church entryway.

The word consecration literally means "association with the sacred", and as such it requires a much larger commitment than simply reciting a prayer. To receive the full benefit of intercession from the Holy Family, one must cleanse the body, mind and soul. Join us in building up strong Catholic Families by entering into this consecration.

Bethlehem University called an “oasis of peace”

We can help our Christian brothers and sisters at Bethlehem University in the city of Christ's birth, to further their education and support peace. We invite you to join us in contributing to the St. Andrew's Nursing Scholarship. Contribute, as you are able, to the second collection on January 7/8.

While on pilgrimage in the Holy Land in November, several of your fellow parishioners met our recipient, Angelina Elias Naim Mukarker. She gave us the thank you note attached and her school photo. Without this scholarship, she would not have been able to attend/afford the University.

I am just speechless and can't find the words to thank you for this amazing news, having this scholarship is a push to make me work harder on my targets and making everyone around me including myself proud.

Thank you again for the opportunity that given to me.

Angelina Mukarker

A light in darkness

One place where it is possible to look for some light, however, is Bethlehem University, the only Catholic university in the Holy Land, a school described by Bishop William Shomali, auxiliary bishop of the Latin Patriarchate of Jerusalem, as “an oasis of peace where Muslim and Christian students and teachers live, study and work in concord and harmony.”

Any visitor to Bethlehem eventually notices the impressive campus operated by the De La Salle Brothers. The influence of the school also becomes clear in conversation with local leaders, especially in the Latin Patriarchate of graduates hold a host of jobs across the West Bank, Gaza and East Jerusalem, and some return to serve as faculty. One of them, Vera Baboun, came back to work at the university for 21 years as a teacher of English literature and also as assistant dean of students. A Catholic, in 2012 she was elected the first female mayor of Bethlehem. She considers herself “a daughter” of the university's De La Salle teaching tradition and views the school as one of the great treasures of the city she now runs.

“Usually you graduate from a school,” she said, “but Bethlehem University has a tradition, and as a teacher and a student I have been raised on that tradition. That affects my life also today. How to be efficient, to work with honesty and decency and most importantly with faith, with (Jesus) in your heart.”

Difficult times

This tradition is especially crucial given the violence that has touched the faculty staff and students over the years. The school has been closed 12 times by the Israeli military, including a three-year period from October 1987 until October 1990 during the first Palestinian Intifada, the uprising against Israeli occupation of the Palestinian territories. The scars of the fighting can still be seen in the buildings.

In March 2002, when Bethlehem was the center of fierce firefights and the Church of the Nativity was the site of a siege between Israeli troops and Palestinians, four Israeli anti-tank missiles struck the university. Three hit the Millennium Hall complex that had been dedicated only the year before and one smashed into the Palestinian Cultural Heritage Center in the library. The hole in the wall of the library caused by the missile has been carefully preserved with a glass cover.

Today, because of the restrictions in place during the COVID pandemic, students are attending classes on line. In many instances, this is very difficult because of limited or sporadic access. Because of the collapse of tourism, again because of the COVID pandemic, many of the students, and the students' families, are facing unprecedented financial difficulties.

Interreligious ties

Visitors to the school are often shocked to learn that 74 percent of the students are Muslim, and even more surprised that 77 percent of the students are women. At a time when Christian-Muslim relations seem at a low point in Iraq, Syria and elsewhere across the Middle East, the university is a unique place – a Catholic institution of higher learning where Muslims and Christians can meet and build cultural and social bridges for the future.

Sami Yousef, head of the Pontifical Missions Society for the Holy Land and a former professor, stresses the importance of this process.

“For many of the Muslim students who come from places like Hebron or the outlying villages,” he told Our Sunday Visitor, “this is really their first exposure at the age of 18 to any Christian presence, symbols or individuals... and yet when they open up their eyes, Christianity for them is something very dear to their heart. All of a sudden you are talking about people who are of the same language and the same culture that are your neighbors, and you start to build up these relationships and respect for Christian institutions.”

This was the vision intended from the start by the Christian Brothers, and the Holy See has worked to help. The papal nuncio to Israel and apostolic delegate to Jerusalem and Palestine for example holds the post of university chancellor and acts as chief adviser to the vice chancellor in expressing the concerns of the Holy See. The Vatican also encourages the vital task of institutional development and fundraising. The Christian Brothers have done exemplary work, but they are keenly aware of the degree to which the university has relied over the decades on generous help from across the globe. Only 40 percent of the university's operating costs come from tuition, so the school benefits greatly from support from 29 countries. The United States provided the most assistance, followed by Australia, France and Germany. The members of the Equestrian Order of the Holy Sepulchre of Jerusalem have also provided crucial assistance over the years.

Supporters want to help preserve the Christian presence in the Holy Land. But there is the complementary goal of seeing a school where Christians and Muslims study together and not merely survive but flourish. As Bishop Shomali emphasizes, Bethlehem University is “a Catholic institution where ethical values of tolerance, dialogue, teamwork, respect of the other and the Christian values are the daily bread. Although Bethlehem University is a small one in terms of numbers, it remains an oasis of peace and dialogue in a torn and divided Middle East.”
